Hi Robin,

Just to be clear. I didn't meet with the administrator. He spoke to our National Cattlemen group. He has spoke with our senator Daines about the Berkley Pit as well. We have been very active in WOTUS for a decade now. We would like to schedule a site visit as I mentioned in my email.

Thank you for all your help...Bryan

Hi Bryan,

I'm forwarding your proposal to have the Administrator come out for a visit to his Scheduling Team for consideration. They will take it from here.

By way of background, Mr. Mussard is President of the Montana Stock Growers Association, who met with the Administrator last week and had a productive discussion during which, the Administrator was amenable considering a site visit.

Robin,

Thanks for the fast reply. The next steps are 2 fold.

1. A site visit to our cattle feed yard to see how well we do things as an example of cattle feed yards. A stop in KS on the way through to see ur other feed yard where we finish cattle. A meeting with the State of Montana EPA on regulations. Our state has gone wild with regulation by unelected bureaucrats with nothing to offer, but more govt. jobs pushing paper. It really is out of hand, when we have to sign a piece of paper, that we checked our water tanks everyday day or we face fines.

Objective- Our national administrator can set the reset button for state agencies, nationwide

We live only 65 miles from the largest superfund sight in the world, The Berkley Pit in Butte. There is very little communication with the state EPA on that project.

2. A combined float trip with Secretary Perdue and Secretary Zinke along with Ray Starling from the administration I September. Dillon, Montana is the hub of where Agriculture and the environment coexist and have for decades now. To host a summit or combined meeting to share what was shared with us would be extremely beneficial to all of us in the west. We would have a draw from 5 states.

These things can be can be done in one visit. Scott asked for our help and I make myself available to him in this capacity.

Please let me know how to proceed. We can get more specific break it up depending on his schedule.

Thanks again...Bryan
